Allowable Subject Matter

2. Claims 1-8, 11-28, 31-41 and 44-49 are allowed.

The following is an Examiner's Statement of Reason for Allowance:

The closest prior art, US 2002/0016759 (Macready et al.) discloses all of the limitations of independent claims 1, 21 and 41 except:

automatically negotiating, by a negotiating engine in the computer system, with the customer terms of sale of the product or service based on the initial offer of sale, the acceptable terms of sale based on the history information, the one or more rules, and the one or more attributes of the product or service; and the negotiating engine automatically negotiates by determining and providing a counteroffer to each modification of the terms of sale made by the customer until the customer and the negotiating engine agree to mutually acceptable terms of sale.

Prior art taken alone or in combination failed to teach or suggest the limitations of:

automatically negotiating, by a negotiating engine in the computer system, with the customer terms of sale of the product or service based on the initial offer of sale, the acceptable terms of sale based on the history information, the one or more rules, and the one or more attributes of the product or service; and the negotiating engine automatically negotiates by determining and providing a counteroffer to each modification of the terms of sale made by the customer until the customer and the negotiating engine agree to mutually acceptable terms of sale, as recited in independent claims 1, 21 and 41.

Dependent claims 2-8, 11-20, 22-28, 31-40, 44-49 are allowed for the same reasons respective independent claims 1, 21 and 41.

Other prior arts that have been considered are:

US 6,338,050 (Conklin et al.) discloses a multivariate negotiations engine for international transaction processing, and a systems for negotiating transactions and more particularly to systems for conducting negotiations and transactions internationally, over the Internet or other international network, and a multivariate negotiations system including storage space, and negotiations software, such negotiations software including an automated negotiations engine for analyzing terms, the analysis of terms comprising understanding the purpose of the terms, formatting the terms according to the purpose, selecting certain of the terms to be processed according to internationally accepted methods, and placing them into user supplied context for use by a user, the multivariate negotiations system being connected to the international network and responsive to terminals communicating along a communications path over the international network.

US 6,047,274 (Johnson et al.) discloses an auction service is provided that stimulates competition between energy suppliers (i.e., electric power or natural gas). A bidding moderator (Moderator) receives bids from the competing suppliers of the rate each is willing to charge to particular end users for estimated quantities of electric power or gas supply (separate auctions)

US 2002/0120555 (Lerner) discloses a method providing a real-time electronic marketplace for physical soft commodities, such as coffee, sugar, cotton, cocoa, rice, etc. Unlike other online trading commodity sites which emulate current offline business practices, the present invention capitalizes on web-enabled technology to provide end-to-end market players with tools to increase profitability and operating efficiencies, and if the initial trader had selected manual, the system would match the bid and offer since the proposal falls within the visible and/or hidden terms the original trader selected. Also, with "Autotrade" selected, the submitting of the counterproposal by the second trader will be recognized by the matching engine of the present system as a matching order and automatically execute the trade according to the terms of the counterproposal. If the first trader had selected manual trading, then the matching engine would have caused a query message to be sent to the first trader asking for approval before reverting to terms specified in the Autotrade wizard to automatically counter-propose negotiate and potentially trade with the counter-proposing trader.

US 2003/0014325 (Biffar et al.) discloses a method and apparatus herein discloses a system that automatically negotiates pricing, terms, and conditions in connection with the purchase of goods and services. The invention is described herein, solely for purposes of example, in connection with a cargo shipment between a shipper, and a freight forwarder and/or a reseller of freight forwarder services. A shipper first views a list of available shipping routes then selects those on which he wishes to bid. The shipper can then bid on such variables as airline, departure date, arrival date, route, service level, and origin and destination of the shipment. The system then alters the shipping variables to meet the shipper's bid closer. The amount the system is willing alter the original variables to meet the shipper's bid depends on a shipper rating system. The shipper rating is function of such factors as reliability, payment history, and negotiation strategy, and a pricing system is used which calculates a scoring discount based on forwarder attributes.
